TREVOSE HEIGHTS FIREMEN HOUSE NEW EQUIPMENT

Truck and Ambulance Officially Dedicated To the Community

HAVE STREET PARADE

Speakers Laud Efforts of Volunteer Firemen For Services Rendered

By Staff Reporter

TREVOSE HEIGHTS, June 30—Trevose Heights Fire Company, No. 1, Saturday, in an impressive ceremony which included a parade of fire apparatus, dedication speeches, and free refreshments for all, became the first fire company in Lower Bucks county in recent years to house, at one time, two new pieces of fire-fighting and first-aid apparatus.

Trevose Heights' two new units are a 1,000-gallon triple combination fire tank truck, which cost $15,000, and an $8,000 Buick Flexible ambulance of the most modern kind. Emergency equipment of the ambulance includes such advanced items as electrically heated stretcher pads and complete oxygen equipment in back of the driver's seat.

The ceremonies during which the units were housed in the fire company's building at Elmwood avenue, began with a parade of fire engines and ambulances representing fire companies in Lower Bucks County, as well as units from Philadelphia and Montgomery County.

Starting from "A" street, Trevose, the parade led by Trevose Heights Fire Co.'s new truck began its way north on Brownsville road at 2:30 p. m.

In succession, following the new engine were fire trucks from Parkland Fire Co.; Southampton Fire Co., No. 1; and Wm. Penn Fire Co., Hulmeville. Then came the American Legion Band of Willow Grove, followed by fire trucks from Cornwells Fire Co., No. 1; America

GOD STILL LOVES LOYALTY

YARDLEY, June 30—St. Andrew's Episcopal Church provided the setting for the marriage on Saturday afternoon at two o'clock of Miss Diane Mathews Siesel, daughter of Mrs. William Mathews Siesel, Yardley, and Mr. Conzillo A. Sodano, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfonso Sodano, Newtown.

The Rev. William Stimson, officiated at the ceremony with Mr. Victor Hembrecht at the organ. The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Henry F. Winterling, Bedford Village, N. Y. Her gown was of white embroidered organdy over taffeta, fashioned with fitted bodice, rounded neckline and short sleeves, with skirt fashioned in tiers. Her fingertip veil of French illusion fell from a circlet of stephanotis, and she carried a bouquet of white roses and stephanotis.

Miss Esther Stapler, Yardley, maid of honor, wore white embroidered organdy with bouffant skirt over yellow taffeta, fashioned with low neckline and short sleeves. She carried an arm bouquet of African daisies and wore a garland of same in her hair. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Richard Bridi, Rushland, sister of the bride; Miss Carolyn Fitzcharles and Miss Patricia Ekings, Morrisville, and Miss Ellen Steele, Feasterville. They wore gowns identical to that of the honor attendant, two over light blue taffeta and two over lime green taffeta. They carried arm bouquets of African daisies and wore garlands of the same in their hair.

From the time that Taft with his inspiring victory in 1938 helped start the tide rolling the other way, down to his sensational victory in 1950 when he smashed the might of the New Deal opposition mustered against him, Senator Taft has been a rallying point and main spring in the purely political rebuilding of the Republican Party.

While other weaker souls were playing the me-too game, and fattening on the tid-bits they received from the New Dealers, Taft held the line of his convictions and his party philosophy. The other opportunists traded away their party's integrity for personal gains; but when they were elected, it was mainly by marginal victories, while Taft, clinging to the faith, was winning by tremendous landslides.

But a political party must be more than a club, and mere membership and organization are only the beginning. A party must stand for something, even in the days of its adversity. It must have a program and a position, it must have vision and convictions, or it can never hope to regain public confidence.

It is in this field that the service of Senator Taft is most outstanding.

Entering the Senate at a time when Republican prospects were dimmest, and the Republican voice the faintest, he rose rapidly to leadership. Senator Taft possessed the advantages of a brilliant mind and an exceptional education, and to these he rapidly added factual knowledge of the details of all the great complicated mass of interrelated problems faced by the United States government.

Shortly Taft became Republican leader at Washington for the whole broad field of domestic issues.

In that capacity, he debated almost daily with the Democratic demagogues, fortified with the fruits of long research by braintrusters; and day after day he more than held his own.

Taft stood up for certain basic considerations first the fiscal integrity of Federal government, skirting closely on the borders of national bankruptcy; he stood up for the principle of rule by law as opposed to rule by dictators; he clung closely to the fundamentals of the American constitution.

Out of the penetrating arguments and unanswerable logic of Senator Taft, there came into full flower in Congress a coalition which, as all realists know, held this nation back from following the socialistic take-over suffered by Great Britain, France, Germany and many other democratic nations within the generation.

This coalition was between Northern Republicans and Southern Democrats, both of which groups had long mistrusted certain trends of the New Deal, but which until the advent of Senator Taft had found no effective way of making their resistance felt.

Long before President Roosevelt died, this coalition of pro-Americans was fencing in the schemes and projects of the internationalists, the "milk-for-the-Hottentots" globaloney boys.

The reply of the New Deal was to dangle rich rewards in front of susceptible Republicans who were starved from the long out-of-power position of their party.

By such bait as high position, aid in close elections, preferment, adulatory publicity, and other such devices, the New Deal lured off a cluster of Republican strength just about sufficient to counterbalance the defections in the Democratic ranks.

In many fields, even this process was in-

POISON CASE TO BE ARGUED IN COURT

Case Has Attracted State-wide Attention Because of Importance

SEVERAL LAWYERS

DOYLESTOWN, June 30—The Bucks county poison bait prosecutions that have attracted state-wide attention will come up for oral argument today, in the Bucks county court, before President Judge Hiriam H. Keller and Judge Edward G. Blester, at 10 o'clock.

The defendants are Thomas D. Frye, executive director of the Pennsylvania State Game Commission, and Edwin W. Flexer, of Quakertown, a district game protector for Bucks county.

Attorney Walter S. Hare, a resident of the Quakertown area, is the private prosecutor on one of the cases, and Henry L. Freking, Quakertown RD magazine publisher is the other prosecutor.

The defendants charged at a recent hearing that poison bait was illegally placed by the game authorities' representatives on various Bucks county farms and that in two instances, at least, valuable dogs were poisoned.

Last June 4 the two judges heard the testimony, without a jury, and since that time over 1,000 pages of testimony has been transcribed. This will be reviewed orally this morning.

The defendants will be represented by Attorney William M. Power, of Doylestown, and Atto-

JOAN STACKHOUSE IS BRIDE OF BRISTOLIAN

Becomes Wife of Harry Ratcliffe, Jr., In Newtown Edifice

TO LIVE IN PENNDEL

NEWTOWN, June 30—On Saturday afternoon, at two p. m., Miss Joan Lorraine Stackhouse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Stackhouse, of "Hi-Acres", became the bride of Mr. Harry Ratcliffe, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ratcliffe, of 903 Garden Street, Bristol, in St. Andrew's R. C. Church.

The Rev. Daniel J. Daly, officiated at the double ring ceremony, with Mr. Charles Baird, of Langhorne, at the organ, who also accompanied Dr. Raymond Hennessy, of Newtown, as he rendered "Mother At Your Feet Is Kneeling" and "Wedding Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white nylon tulle, lace trimmed, over taffeta, fashioned with fitted bodice, cap sleeves, illusion neckline, long full skirt, illusion falling into a cathedral train. Matching lace mitts completed her ensemble. Her fingertip veil of French illusion fell from a pleated tulip cap trimmed with pearls and she carried an

Engines have estimated that the renovation work will cost about $60,000 and boost the present supply of only 900,000 gallons daily to approximately 1,500,000 gallons.

The purpose of the visit will be to determine whether the iron-removal process can be applied to an artesian well in Morrisville that was completed a year ago as an additional water source, but which was not placed in service after it was found that the well water's iron content was too high for use by Morrisville's 7,000 residents.

It was estimated about two months ago that iron-removal equipment would cost the borough $9,000, including installation.

The artesian well can be utilized, it will provide an additional source of 500,000 to 700,000 gallons daily, bringing the extra supply from both the well and the renovated filtering plant to more than 1,000,000 gallons—or more than the entire current output.

MAKE USE OF AMBULANCES

The following were transported by Bucks County Rescue Squad during the week-end: Mrs. William Potts, Newville, to Mercer Hospital, Trenton, N. J.; Mrs. Charlotte Jennings, Maple Beach, returned from Wills Eye hospital, Phila.; Mrs. Catherine Iacovone, removed from Muffett's Nursing home, Croydon, to her home, 2002 Trenton avenue; Mrs. Mitman, Maple Shade, Walter Enochs, Maple Shade, and Stephen Cosgrove, Frosty Hollow, to Abington Hospital.

BAND PROGRAM TO OPEN

Bristol high school will open its summer band program tomorrow evening at seven o'clock in the band room at the high school. Rehearsals will be held every Wednesday and Thursday evening for six weeks. An invitation is extended to any adults who wish to join the group. It is possible the attendance of adults will be the beginning of an adult band, according to Arthur Hornberger, band director.

GOD STILL LOVES LOYALTY

There is a phase of the Republican convention which has received less attention than it deserves.

This is the matter of party loyalty, teamwork, the backing up of leaders, the support, moral and otherwise, of those who have borne the brunt of battle in the dismal days, now that the opportunity for brighter victories in the future is in sight.

Let it be said that God despises disloyalty, just as He hates the cowardly sentiments which produce it; and He, in His way, sees to it that defeat and disgrace haunt those who truckle with expediency and desert their leaders.

A handful of men in this nation deserve most of the credit for bringing the Republican Party back to its feet after the demoralizations of the Maine-Vermont days sixteen years ago; and of those men, the most outstanding is Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio.

Out of the penetrating arguments and unanswerable logic of Senator Taft, there came into full flower in Congress a coalition which, as all realists know, held this nation back from following the socialistic take-over suffered by Great Britain, France, Germany and many other democratic nations within the generation.

This coalition was between Northern Republicans and Southern Democrats, both of which groups had long mistrusted certain trends of the New Deal, but which until the advent of Senator Taft had found no effective way of making their resistance felt.

Long before President Roosevelt died, this coalition of pro-Americans was fencing in the schemes and projects of the internationalists, the "milk-for-the-Hottentots" globaloney boys.

The reply of the New Deal was to dangle rich rewards in front of susceptible Republicans who were starved from the long out-of-power position of their party.

By such bait as high position, aid in close elections, preferment, adulterary publicity, and other such devices, the New Deal lured off a cluster of Republican strength just about sufficient to counterbalance the defections in the Democratic ranks.

Four vocal selections were offered by Mr. Robert Myers, of Hanover, cousin of the bridegroom. These were: "I Love You Truly," "Because," "O Perfect Love" and "Saviour Like a Shepherd Lead Us." The organist was Miss Vera Donnell, 233 Cedar street.

As she made her way to the altar on the arm of her father, the bride was costumed in a gown of white lace over satin, entrain. Her headpiece was of nylon net; and her bouquet composed of stephanotis with a lavender-throated white orchid at the center.

Her attendants were six in number, the group being composed of:

Maid of honor, a sister, Miss Edith Orazi, wearing white nylon net over pink taffeta; bridesmaids, the Misses Doris and Janet Plowman, sisters of the bridegroom, wearing blue nylon net over blue taffeta; Miss Joan Henderson, 150 Schumacher Drive, and Miss Dolores Oates, West Bristol, costumed in pink nylon net over taffeta of the same color; flower girl, Bonnie Brandau, costumed like the maid of honor. Each attendant wore a net bonnet to match her gown, and slippers of all were white. Baskets for each were filled with a variety of flowers.

A MAN'S GAME

Players and managers throughout the Interstate Baseball League—which functions in Pennsylvania and adjoining states—can junk preparations for defending the sanctity of the dugout with bats. The minor league commissioner, George M. Trautman, has called the Harrisburg Senators out for signing a contract with what one press service calls a "curvaceous girl" infielder.

A solemn bulletin from Columbus, O., where Mr. Trautman makes his headquarters, states that no minor league club can sign a woman player. Apparently the commissioner went right to the top, for it is revealed that baseball czar Ford Frick concurs. Minor league baseball thus remains a man's game.

It appears that the idea stemmed from the Harrisburg club's top management. The Senator's manager, Clarence Etchison, had already stated that she would play on his team only "when hell freezes over." A spokesman for management stated that the candidate, a Mrs. Eleanor Engle, had worked out with the team a few times and "looked pretty good." Comment from the rest of the team wasn't available.

It is not clear whether the signing of this pretty brunet, who is a prize shortstop on a woman's team, was an act of desperation. The Harrisburg team is only two games out of the league cellar. Attendance at games is woefully lacking in numbers. Most teams in the league are being run at a loss by their major league affiliates.

In a way it is to be regretted that Mrs. Engle will not be able to prove to fans that gals can play the game on equal terms with men. Sure, there are problems, but perhaps the added attraction might be the salvation of minor leagues.

LACK OF TOURIST NEWS

Perhaps newspaper reporters are slipping, but here it is the end of June and assiduous research fails to turn up a dispatch in any of the public journals concerning the status of the tourist business. Is the number of tourists crisscrossing the continent setting a new record? Is it about the same as last year? Or what?

There are stories about the number of men being idled by the steel strike, about a bumper wheat crop, etc., but nary a word about tourists.

This is an inexcusable oversight. The nation's economy is dependent to a large extent on the billions scattered hither and yon each year by tourists. And those whose vacation is coming up are eager to know whether rates at the various accommodations they will patronize are the same as last year or have again been boosted.

Couldn't one of the wire services at least find out what gives in Yellowstone Park, which is sort of a bellwether of vacation and tourist spots?

ECHOES OF THE PAST

(By Courier Staff Member)

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol Feb. 25, 1904. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

LOWER BENSalem — The ice gorge at Croydon bridge was so heavy on Monday that it destroyed a part of one of the stone piers of the trolley bridge.

In the closing down of the Bristol rolling mill Bristol will be deprived of the advantages of one of its heretofore most important industries. During the five years that the mill has been in operation it has given employment to men who commanded by wages, the payroll amounting to about $3,000 a week.

For the April term of court the following Bristolians were drawn on Monday for jury service: John C. Maule, John P. Betz, Frank Heitzman, Thomas B. Harkins, James Archer, B. C. Foster. For the May term the following were drawn: William H. Booz, Frank P. Chambers, William B. Holt, John Myers, A. L. Watt, W. A. Barnhill, Leopold Landreth.

Franklin Gilkeson, only son of the late B. F. Gilkeson, was yesterday admitted, upon examination, as a member of the Bucks County Bar. The committee appointed to examine the applicant consisted of the following attorneys: Henry Lear, Harvey S. Kiser, William C. Ryan, Henry A. James, and Charles H. Hall. Having placed a creditable examination the formal admission took place in open court yesterday morning. Franklin Gilkeson will be at once associated with Howard I. James, his father's partner, and the established firm name of Gilkeson & James will be continued. According to the terms of the will B. F. Gilkeson's valuable law library was bequeathed to his son. In order to raise the necessary funds the Company contemplates holding a fair in April at the Colonial Theatre, on Wood street.... The fair committee is as follows: George Vansant, chairman; F. T. Chambers, vice-chairman; H. A. Pettit, secretary; John Kessler, treasurer; Robert McCoy, Robert Hetherington, Joseph Burton, William Moss, Warner Allen, T. C. Harper, George Strouse, Joseph Wright, John Chambers, William Wright, Samuel Brooks, H. G. Young, Thomas VanHorn, Bennett Wing, Gus Williams, H. Pedrick, Claud Harris, Justice Clark, F. M. Young, George Buckley, J. M. Owens, Lewis T. Rodan, H. Shepard, Evan Smoyer, Lewis Treude, Walter Roe, John Moyer, George Callanan.

The ice boat went up as far as Bordentown and returned. The river is now comparatively free from heavy ice and there are no fears entertained of a gorge, as was anticipated. The ferryboat, which had not made a trip this year, expected to resume its excursions today between Burlington and Bristol. Mr. Doron states this is the first year since 1870 that the ferry did not make a trip in January.

Owing to the dilapidated condition of the present fire house, and finding that it will cost from $1200 to $1500 to place the same in good condition, the members of American Hose, Hook & Ladder Company, No. 2, of Bristol, deem it more expedient to build a new building rather than spend that amount on the old one.

In order to raise the necessary funds the Company contemplates holding a fair in April at the Colonial Theatre, on Wood street....

The fair committee is as follows: George Vansant, chairman; F. T. Chambers, vice-chairman; H. A. Pettit, secretary; John Kessler, treasurer; Robert McCoy, Robert Hetherington, Joseph Burton, William Moss, Warner Allen, T. C. Harper, George Strouse, Joseph Wright, John Chambers, William Wright, Samuel Brooks, H. G. Young, Thomas VanHorn, Bennett Wing, Gus Williams, H. Pedrick, Claud Harris, Justice Clark, F. M. Young, George Buckley, J. M. Owens, Lewis T. Rodan, H. Shepard, Evan Smoyer, Lewis Treude, Walter Roe, John Moyer, George Callanan.

The musicians were Mrs. Ralph Hart, Edgely, who sang "I Love Thee," "Through the Years," and "Because;" and Mrs. Harry Patton, Langhorne, organist.

Chantilly lace over satin formed the bridal gown, it being cut princess style and ballerina length. A headpiece of orange blossoms and net held a short veil of net. Her old-fashioned bouquet was composed of white roses, stephanotis, and baby breath, and from this fell white streamers.

Her only attendant was Miss Hester Wright, Eddington, who was costumed in lace and net in a medium dark blue shade, ballerina length. Her tiara matched, a short veil being attached to this. Her old-fashioned bouquet was of yellow carnations.

Mr. Robert H. Sutton, Buckley street, brother of the bride, was best man; and the usher was Mr. Theodore Lodge, Otter street.

In Goodwill Fire Co., No. 3, station, the reception took place, a large company of relatives and friends gathering for the function.

The honeymoon is being spent at Lake George, N. Y., the bride traveling in a blue and white dress, white accessories, and wearing a corsage of white roses. Mrs. Burton graduated in 1948 from Bristol high school. Her husband saw service with the U. S. Air Force in Germany during World War II.

The two will reside at 447 Jefferson avenue.

sufficient to hold the line against the leadership of Senator Taft, and the result was that time and again the vetoes of President Roosevelt and later those of President Truman were overruled by Congress.

Sensational among these were the battles over the tax-cuts and the labor relations act (Taft-Hartley Law) in 1947. In these two cases, Senator Taft took the air against the noisiest of the New Deal haranguers, including the president himself, and also including the labor-unions' ablest spokesman; and successfully upheld the principles for which he stood—two of the extremely few occasions in the last few years in which any Republican has been able to out-debate the New Deal experts in a national hook-up.

When the Republican convention's choice, in 1948, fell to Governor Dewey and Governor Warren, a weakness existed which rapidly made itself felt. That weakness was that the two major candidates, coming to the national arena as state governors, not only had little interest and sympathy in the problems of Congress, but knew too little about these matters to hold up the Republican Party's side of the issue in the campaign.

The result was that in every Congressional district Republican candidates were talking a language wholly different from that of the heads of their ticket. A fatal lack of unity and effectiveness resulted (as the great discrepancies between Congressional and presidential vote that year proves beyond question). In the catch-phrase of the time, Dewey and Warren were trapped into the position of running against the Republican congress, and their defeat followed inevitably.

Now regardless of what any person may think or wish, the record of the Republican Party in Congress for the past several years is an inseparable part of the Party platform. It is, in fact, much more the platform than any words which may be strung together this July.

No greater folly could possibly exist than for the Republicans to fall between two stools answer with aid when fire whistles blew.

"These men don't get paid" for the services they perform, said Graham, however, to do an effective job "they need money and assistance from the townspeople."

William L. Stackhouse, County Detective, and former Fire Marshal of Bucks County, next speaker, recalled that it was only a few years ago that the Bucks County Rescue Squad was organized, "then Trevose Heights came along (with their rescue squad) and has made great strides since its (the rescue squad's) organization."

"I hope the community digs down and helps pay" for the new equipment, said "Doc" Boumont, president of the Pennsylvania Association of First Aid and Rescue Squads, and himself in his 47th year of first aid work.

And the final speaker of the evening, Robert O'Neill, president of the Bucks County Fire Chiefs Association, said of the Trevose Heights Fire Company, "the boys are here and the equipment is here," what is needed now, he said, is "financial aid" to carry on the work.

At 3:50, Chief Russell gave the signal to house the two new units, "Billy" Lynam, 5, Trevose Heights, and "Dottie" Benz, 7, also of Trevose Heights, dressed respectively as a fireman and a first aid nurse, cut the ribbons which stretched across the open firehouse doorways.

The new fire truck was then backed into the fire house by Fred Hibbs, Chief of Edgely Fire Co., and the ambulance was backed in by Charles Fox of the Burholme First Aid Corps.

Chief Russell then invited all those present to share refreshments at the counters set up across from the fire house.

Hose, Hook and Ladder, Bristol; McKinley Fire Co., of Montgomery County; Edgely Fire Co.; Trevose Fire Co.; Yardley Fire Co.; Union Fire Co.; Cornwells Heights; Independent Fire Co.; Jenkintown; Jenkintown Fire Co.; Feasterville Fire Co., and Eddington Fire Co.

At "C" street the fire trucks were joined by the ambulance and first aid units led by Trevose Heights' new cream-grey Buick. Following were the Burholme First Aid Corps—including their new Mobile Unit trailer; Wissinoming First Aid Corps, Phila.; nurses, ambulance drivers, and ambulance of the Bristol Blood Donors, Bristol; and the Bucks County Rescue Squad.

The route of the parade was north on Brownsville road to Meadowbrook street, up Meadowbrook to Elmwood, then to the Trevose Heights Fire House.

As the parade drew past the fire house Chief C. A. Russell, in charge of the afternoon activities, introduced each unit to the large crowd of residents who had gathered to witness the ceremonies.

Then after the Willow Grove Legion Band played the Star Spangled Banner, and flowers had been placed on the new equipment by William Ervin, chief of Cornwells Fire Co., and Mrs. Frank Taylor, nurse of the Bristol Blood Donors, Bristol, Chief Russell included their new Mobile Unit trailer; Wissinoming First Aid Corps, Phila.; nurses, ambulance drivers, and ambulance of the sumption, Trevose Heights. The Rev. McCardle gave the benediction, and blessed the new equipment.

He also set the keynote for the afternoon's speakers when he praised the "splendid efforts of the Trevose Heights Fire Co.," which resulted in the housing of the new equipment. He said the new units would be "instruments of mercy" and should be to all residents, symbols, which "represent man's humanity to man."

"In a community such as this everyone is dependent on his neighbor's good will and kindness in times of distress," said Rev. McCardle. And Robert Graham, Fire Marshal of Bucks County, who spoke next, asked: "What would happen if the volunteer firemen forgot their neighbors?" and didn't sufficient to hold the line against the leadership of Senator Taft, and the result was that time and again the vetoes of President Roosevelt and later those of President Truman were overridden by Congress.

Sensational among these were the battles over the tax-cuts and the labor relations act (Taft-Hartley Law) in 1947. In these two cases, Senator Taft took the air against the noisiest of the New Deal haranguers, including the president himself, and also including the labor-unions' ablest spokesman; and successfully upheld the principles for which he stood—two of the extremely few occasions in the last few years in which any Republican has been able to out-debate the New Deal experts in a national hook-up.

When the Republican convention's choice, in 1948, fell to Governor Dewey and Governor Warren, a weakness existed which rapidly made itself felt. That weakness was that the two major candidates, coming to the national arena as state governors, not only had little interest and sympathy in the problems of Congress, but knew too little about these matters to hold up the Republican Party's side of the issue in the campaign.

The result was that in every Congressional district Republican candidates were talking a language wholly different from that of the heads of their ticket. A fatal lack of unity and effectiveness resulted (as the great discrepancies between Congressional and presidential vote that year prove beyond question). In the catch-phrase of the time, Dewey and Warren were trapped into the position of running against the Republican congress, and their defeat followed inevitably.

Now regardless of what any person may think or wish, the record of the Republican Party in Congress for the past several years is an inseparable part of the Party platform. It is, in fact, much more the platform than any words which may be strung together this July.

No greater folly could possibly exist than for the Republicans to fall between two stools trying to write a platform and elect a nominee not part and parcel of the Congressional stand the party has taken—which stand, of course, is virtually synonymous with the name of Senator Taft.

Much has been said to the effect that "Taft can't win." This is part of a malicious smear campaign conducted by the holier-than-thou supporters of General Eisenhower, among other angles of which is the "isolationist" epithet applied to Taft, and the outrageously distorted versions which have been circulated concerning the Texas conventions.

The fact is, of course, that only Taft can win—that is, whether he personally is the candidate or not, if it is not the Taft philosophy and position upon which the Republican party goes to bat this year, then the party has no valid reason to present to the voters why it should be given the presidency, and no prospect of knowing what to do with the presidency even if it got it, which isn't likely.

You can't turn history back any more than you can roll the hours of the day back and make it daybreak again.

The record of the Republicans under Taft, as written in Congress, is unblotterable, inescapable. If someone runs who privately is ashamed of that record, or not in sympathy with it, or if someone like General Eisenhower is the candidate who knows no more than a babe in arms of the infinitely complex subjects involved, that record, which should be the glory and the agency of victory for the party, will defeat it.

Meanwhile, the simple equation is still true—that no party which is so little grateful and so little loyal to a leader who has done so much for it as Bob Taft has for the Republicans—no party which in the light of such infinite service turns away and bestows its blessing upon wholly inexperienced, untried and untrained newcomer whose sole contribution to the Republican Party consists of having voted three times in his life—such an ungrateful and disloyal party could have small hope for favors at the hands of destiny.

"These men don't get paid" for the services they perform, said Graham, however, to do an effective job "they need money and assistance from the townspeople."

William L. Stackhouse, County Detective, and former Fire Marshal of Bucks County, next speaker, recalled that it was only a few years ago that the Bucks County Rescue Squad was organized, "then Trevose Heights came along (with their rescue squad) and has made great strides since its (the rescue squad's) organization."

"I hope the community digs down and helps pay" for the new equipment, said "Doc" Boumont, president of the Pennsylvania Association of First Aid and Rescue Squads, and himself in his 47th year of first aid work.

And the final speaker of the evening, Robert O'Neill, president of the Bucks County Fire Chiefs Association, said of the Trevose Heights Fire Company, "the boys are here and the equipment is here," what is needed now, he said, is "financial aid" to carry on the work.

At 3:50, Chief Russell gave the signal to house the two new units. "Billy" Lyman, 5, Trevose Heights, and "Dottle" Benz, 7, also of Trevose Heights, dressed respectively as a fireman and a first aid nurse, cut the ribbons which stretched across the open firehouse doorways.

The new fire truck was then backed into the fire house by Fred Hibbs, Chief of Edgely Fire Co., and the ambulance was backed in by Charles Fox of the Burholme First Aid Corps.

Chief Russell then invited all those present to share refreshments at the counters set up across from the fire house.

By Staff Reporter

LEVITTOWN, June 30—First on the receiving line at 49 Stonybrook Drive was Smokey, the family chow, pet of George and Pearl Peto and three sons, who recently arrived from Huntington, Long Island, N. Y.

Peto is a plumber for Levitt & Sons and has been here for some time. He attended Glen Head, L. I. schools. Mrs. Peto a native of Huntington, reports, "I like it here very much because I no longer have to be separated from my husband."

The Peto children are Tommy, 7, George, Jr., 4, and Jimmy, 2, who "smiled all over their little faces" as they stood by their mother.

Tommy has already become accustomed to his new environment because he has already acquired a playmate down the drive, and he and his friend were riding bicycles on the new sidewalk. Children playing in the area have already made this a family com-

The mother of the bridegroom, was gowned in navy blue with white accessories and her corsage was of red rosebuds.

They will make their home with the mother of the bride. The bridegroom currently is engaged with Levittown Construction Co.

Phila., wore a gown of light blue lace, over matching taffeta, fashioned with illusion neckline and short tucked sleeves and ballerina skirt made bouffant; matching hat and corsage of white rosebuds.

Mrs. Basil Davies, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor and wore a light blue net gown over matching taffeta, with white accessories and her corsage was of pink rosebuds.

Miss Helen Hankins, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and wore a lilac sheer gown, fashioned with low neck and short sleeves and ballerina skirt and wore rosebuds.

Even Young Women Attend Miss Thorne At Her Wedding

With palms used as a backdrop for candelabra and bouquets mixed white flowers, the Bristol Methodist Church provided an attractive setting Saturday afternoon the hour of four for the nuptial ceremony uniting Miss Louise Daniel Thorne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester D. Thorne, 101 Jefferson Avenue, and Ensign Edgar Luce, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Luce, Sr., of Elmira, N.Y. Given in marriage by her father, the bride took the marriage in the presence of a large company of relatives and friends. Rev. Ralph E. Proud, church pastor, officiated.

The bridal gown of white satin modeled along princess lines, illusion and sweetheart neckline, embroidered with seed pearls, featuring a cathedral train; chapel length veil was of imprinted Chantilly lace; and white roses and ivy, with white orchid in the center, comprised her floral cake.

Miss Joan Laffandre, Irvington, N.J., maid of honor. Her gown, ballerina length, was of orchid colored nylon net over taffeta, with a bodice and matching lace neck jacket. Her headpiece and sash were in the same color; cascade was composed of carnations and ivy, with violet ribbon.

The bridesmaids were six in number, the group being inclusive. The Misses Elisabeth Quickley; Nancy Clayton, Lansdale; Alice Heineman, Haddonfield, N.J.; Nancy Keplinger, Hightstown, N.J.; Barbara Roemer, Springfield, N.J.; Ellen Herte, Westmont, N.Y. Their gowns were patterned like that of the maid of honor. The sextet carried pink carnations and ivy, with violet ribbons.

Mr. Chester W. Luce, of Elmira, is best man for his brother; and ushers included Messrs. Royce Luce, Streator, Ill., another brother; J. Richard Thorne, Bristol, brother of the bride; J. Randle

Smith, Hammonton, N.J.; Elliott Morgan, Bayshore, N.Y.; Warren Klugman, Rockford, Ill.; James Maynard, of Elmira.

Attire of Mrs. Thorne, mother of the bride, was a dinner dress of dusty rose lace and crepe, French blue accessories, and an orchid corsage. A dinner dress in mauve shade, with matching accessories, and an orchid were worn by the bridegroom's mother.

The reception was held at Tressdale - Frankford Country Club, Philadelphia.

For a trip to Virginia Beach, Va., the bride selected a mauve silk shantung dress, matching slippers and bag, purple picture hat and gloves, and a white orchid with purple center. The newlyweds will spend the summer at Newport, R.I. In the autumn, Mrs. Luce, a graduate of Bristol high school, will return to Bucknell University, Lewisburg, for her senior year. She is a member of Phi Mu Sorority. Ensign Luce graduated from Elmira Free Academy; and in 1950 received his B.S. degree at Bucknell. He is stationed at present at Newport with the U.S. Naval Reserve. He was a member of Theta Chi Fraternity at Bucknell.

Miss Doris Weidler, Third Ave., returned with the Wiedlers to spend the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Young and children, Loretta and Margaret, New York, N.Y., are spending a month with Mr. Young's mother, Mrs. Loretta Young, Garden street. A congregational social was held in Zion Lutheran parish house, Thursday evening. The Rev. C. P. Swank, D.D., supply pastor, provided the entertainment by showing slides of Washington, D.C., Williamsburg, Va., and Longwood Gardens, Kenneth Square. Refreshments were served.

Boy Scouts of Troop No. 42, left from Zion Lutheran parish house for a week at Camp Ockanickon, on Sunday. Scout Leader Charles Margerum, accompanied the following scouts to camp: Richard Thorne, Ira Sabel, Wesley Sokol, Peter Fairchild, Donald Palmer, Harold Ritter, Wilson Black, Henry Shire, Edward Carlson, "Billy" Reilly, David Hertzler, "Kenny" Hertzler, Robert Beamer, "Jerry" Plavin, and "Billy" Daniels. The following transported the boys: Wilson Black, Charles Margerum and Luther Palmer. They will return to bring the boys home on July 5th.

George Kleiner celebrated his tenth birthday anniversary with a party on Wednesday, at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Kleiner, Bristol Heights. Refreshments were served. Guests included: David and Thomas Jones, George Robinson, Paul Stuhltrager, Patricia Greesweig, Brian Horn, Marie and Joseph Paul, James Paul, Master Sarazanak, and others.

Engagement announcements must be submitted in writing at the Courier office.

Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Wiedler have returned to Orlando, Fla., after visiting relatives and friends in Burlington, N.J., and Bristol.

William Schutz, Patricia Koonzieg, and Mrs. and Mrs. James Paul, George received gifts. His big surprise was a new bicycle, a gift from his parents.

Miss Myrna Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Phillips, Bristol Terrace, celebrated her 13th birthday anniversary at the home of her great aunt, Mrs. Elizabeth Schell, 312 Wood street. Games were played and prizes awarded. Refreshments were served to: Elisa Bley, Bettipat Walterick, Edgely; Carol Warner, Eleanor Doan, Landreth Manor; "Betty" LeCompte, Violet Reiser, Edward and Gregory Phillips, Bristol Terrace, and Miss Sarah Kock, Mrs. William Kass, Mrs. James Schell, Bristol. Myrna received a wristwatch and other gifts.

CHERRY WINS BIG EVENT AT SPEEDWAY

PENNDL, June 30—Tom Cherry, Muncie, Ind., yesterday won the 100-mile National Speedway Division auto race in one hour, nine minutes, 59.94 seconds before about 10,000 at Langhorne Speedway.

The race marked the first time that Speedway Division cars had raced in this area. The cars are built of the chassis of former Indianapolis racers, but are powered by commercial automobile or truck engines. The event was sponsored by the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing and carried a purse of $6000.

In second place was Steven Yangan, Allentown, who completed 99 miles. He was followed by Wally Campbell, Trenton; Tony Bonadies, Bronx, N. Y., and Ted Keene, Marietta, Ga. Cherry, who set the race during time trial runs on Saturday with a one-lap clocking of 36.66 seconds, averaged 85.69 miles per hour.
